Articles

- "A World Whole, in Ruins and Rebuilt". A discussion between young people and Rabbi Yehuda Amital and the poet Abba Kovner, held under the auspices of the broadcasting authority, parts of which were televised. We bring here the discussion whole, as recorded.
- Joav Gelber, of Beer-Sheba University, brings a broad spectrum of political aspects concerning the formation of a Jewish fighting force in this country during world war two up to the formation of the Jewish Brigade as a fighting force. A lecture held before the "Moreshet Circle", which devoted a study day to the subject, including the Brigade itself.
- Moshe Unna, of Kibbutz Sde-Eliahu and former member of the Knesseth (on behalf of the National Religious Party), brings his article "Who Will Heal You". Criticism and reaction to Alexander Donat's essay "A Voice From the Ashes", published in issue No. 21.
- Israel Gutman corrects and verifies a number of facts and details about the life of Mordechai Anilevitz and his activities as commander of the Jewish Fighting Organization at the time of the uprising in the Warsaw Ghetto.

Sources and Evidence

- Second and final part of Shalom Tsur's research on the life of members of Hashomer Hatzair, arrested in 1941 in Tchernovitz and exiled to a Soviet hard-labour camp. The first part of the research was published in issue No. 21.
- Eli Bachner, member of Moshav Moledeth, who spent his childhood years in the Theresienstadt Ghetto, in the "Families Camp" at Auschwitz, in the "Sonderkommando" and at Buchenwald, gave this evidence in the early sixties.
- Miriam Steiner-Aviezer, who spent her youth in camps in Yougo-slavia during the world war two, relates her own and many other Jewish children's experience in Ustashi camps. We bring a part of the manuscript of her book, which it's first version was published in Lubliana (Yougoslavia) in 1964.

- M. Tchekhanover, from the Makov Ghetto, gives evidence about young men from the little town of Rozhan and how they faced horrors and humiliation. (Part of a book on the Jewish community of Rozhan, to be published soon)
- Prof. Raphael Mahler and Zalman Livneh of Kibbutz Ein-Hashofet make some important remarks regarding two articles published in issue No. 21.

Documentation

 Recognition by the U.S. fo the State of Israel at it's foundation.
