IN THIS ISSUE

Evidence

- A. Weinrib, a Jewish physician, who was head of the Jewish Hospital in the Wilna Ghetto during the war years, and knew its leaders closely, is relating the story of the hospital and, among the rest, deals with the controversial personality of the head of the Judenrat, Jacob Gens. Some of the facts in this article are published for the first time.
- Frania Broide, of Kibbutz Kfar Menachem, gives evidence of a mother to an infant, relating to her experience during "those years". The main part deals with the time she spent in a bunker in a village near Grodno.
- Akiba Skidel, of Kibbutz Kfar Blum, who served with the U.S. Army, publishes letter written to his family, while he was stationed in Berlin in the summer of 1945.

Research

- We bring herewith the preface to the diary of Adam Tcherniakov, head of the Warsaw Judenrat, now published in English. The preface was written by Professors Raoul Hilberg and Stanislaw Staron, of the University of Vermont, U.S.A.
- Joseph Gouvrin tries to determine whether there was a Jewish factor in the relations between Nazi Germany and the U.S.S.R. before the German invasion, in June 1941.
- Hava Wagman-Eshkoly publishes here her research study on the Trans-Dniester Plan for the transfer of Jews, expelled (from Roumania) to this province, to Eretz Israel. She tries to examine whether there was a possibility to save lives or this was just another Nazi attempt to cheat.

Dokumentation

 The activities of the Hashomer Hatzair Movement in Poland, after World War II, is found in the legacy of Israel Glazer, of Kibbutz Nir-David. It was written shortly after the liquidation of the Movement in Poland.

Articles

- Nathan Eck comments on the concept of "Kiddush Ha-Shem" (Martyrdom) and "Kiddush He-Haim" (Sanctity of human life).
- Pesach Schindler offers his remarks to the discussion on "Faith after the Holocaust", which was begun with the article by A. Donat.
